WE TOGETHER: GLOBAL COLLABORATION

At ViskoTeepak, We Together means excellence — shared.

A large puzzle is being assembled by several hands. The puzzle pieces show a ViskoTeepak building with a blue frame and large glass windows. The ViskoTeepak logo is overlaid on the puzzle. The hands are of different skin tones, representing global collaboration.

We Together: The Story of Collaboration Across Borders.

At ViskoTeepak, we have always believed that our strength lies not only in our products but in the people behind them. In 2025, this belief was reaffirmed as our plants in Delfzijl (Netherlands), Kenosha (USA), and Nuevo Laredo (Mexico) joined forces with a united goal: to improve printing capacity and quality across all locations — ensuring consistent, high-standard results for our partners and customers worldwide.

Though separated by geography, we share a common purpose and a strong commitment to excellence. The initiative began with a simple but powerful idea — “we together.” Not “we separately,” not “you and I,” but “we together.” This became the foundation of a cross-continental project to raise our printing operations to the next level, helping us deliver even greater reliability and performance to those who depend on us.

Collaboration in Action

A dedicated team of colleagues from each site travelled across borders and time zones, visiting the printing departments in Kenosha, Nuevo Laredo, and Delfzijl. With open minds and shared curiosity, we examined equipment, observed processes, tested new materials, and exchanged knowledge built on years of hands-on experience. The outcome was not only stronger collaboration but also practical improvements that will directly enhance the value we provide to customers.

In Kenosha, we assessed decades-old machines that had long supported production. Together, we explored solutions to improve drying capabilities, standardize ink mixtures, and modernize parts of the workflow — all steps that contribute to more stable processes and higher print quality for our customers. In Nuevo Laredo, we found valuable technical insights and efficiency methods that could strengthen performance in other locations, helping us maintain delivery security and consistency across regions. Delfzijl contributed by sharing their experience with successful water-based ink printing on fibrous casings, offering inspiration for future transitions that open new, sustainable possibilities for our customers.

One Team, One Mission

What stood out most was not only the knowledge exchanged, but the way it happened: openly, without borders, and with a shared mission. Operators, engineers, and managers stood shoulder to shoulder, testing, analyzing, and improving — as one team, with a clear focus on how these improvements translate into better outcomes for those we serve.

Key improvements identified include:

- Enhancing drying systems
- Upgrading automation for ink mixing
- Optimizing operator training
- Exploring equipment upgrades for long-term performance

Most importantly, establishing a direct line of communication between all plants for continuous feedback and support.

Progress Through Collaboration

This project was more than a technical assessment. It was a clear demonstration of how collaboration leads to progress and how sharing expertise across sites ultimately strengthens the value we deliver to our partners and customers — through better quality, efficiency, and long-term dependability.

Facing the Future Together

Challenges remain ahead, but we now face them with greater knowledge, stronger partnerships, and renewed energy. “We Together” is no longer just an idea — it is how we work, grow, and lead.

At ViskoTeepak, We Together means excellence — shared.
